

The Carolyn Kurz Lay Person Award for Distinguished Service Nominations due to LMS September 30 each year

This award recognizes individuals other than physicians who reside or work in Fayette County who perform distinguished service in the area of medical science, medical education, medical care or other areas which directly impacts on the health and well-being of Fayette County citizens.

Such individuals might include persons who by reason of their profession, such as law enforcement, county government, persons working in TV or newspapers, educators or corporate management, are able to make a substantial impact on the local community, but will also include individuals who are able to make a significant impact as a volunteer.

This award is given annually only if an outstanding individual is identified. The award will include a suitable gift and will be presented at an appropriate meeting of the Society
